President Benjamin Weeks and Program Chairman Charles Royal shown with Representative Emmett Roberts, following Mr. Roberts' explanation of the thirteen amendments on which we must vote on Nov. 3rd.

Mr. Roberts' brief explanation is as follows:
NO. 1 — Attempts to give constitutional sanction to the existing apportionment formula of the Florida Legislature. It is recommended that you VOTE NO on this amendment as the formula is still highly discriminatory against this area.

NO. 2 — Establishes a Board of Regents with nine-year terms to govern our State Universities and State Colleges. This replaces the present board of Control and provides a longer period for holding office. Reason: Governing the number of universities requires more time and knowledge by Board members.

Hospital Will Get Over $1500 Fund

Xi Beta Gamma Chapter president Mrs. Thomas Baker announced Wednesday the society has on hand a fund of $1,355.23 from the Glades Follies performance, plus $175.00 net profit from their May Day dance this spring. Both totals, she explained, include cash donations made by individuals and firms following the two events.

The president reminded that most of the funds paid out were spent right here in Belle Glade. She expressed sincere appreciation to all who made donations and supported the performance, and those who were in the cast.

The net profits from both events will be turned over to the new Glades General Hospital for room furnishings.

Glades Office Building Has New Parking Lot

The parking area at the Palm Beach Glades Office Building has been greatly increased in the last few weeks and will be able to handle many more cars of people who are working or have business at that office.

A large area just East of the present parking lot has been enlarged gravelled and light poles, holding two street lights each, have been installed. When completed these will light up the old and new parking lot as well as the East side of the building.

It is expected that by now paving will be put on the new area in the near future.

At the dedication of the name Herbert Hoover Dike, the Elder Statesman views the goings-on with Governor Farris Bryant, Representative Emmett Roberts and Charlie Minner of Clewiston are seen just behind the Ex-President.

Herbert Hoover, for whom Glades folks suggested and piloted the naming of the Dike around Lake Okechobee, was a man of deep seated feeling for all America.

As an Engineer, he saw plainly the potential of the dike as suggested by engineers.

Herbert Hoover was one of the World's Humanitarians, in his day.

Herbert Hoover was not a politician, yet his Presidency of these United States, we believe, will have an historical niche contrary to the political inferences when he retired.

Herbert Hoover served this Country as an Elder Statesman with benefit to all Americans and with everlasting honor to himself.

Any ONE of the four "professions" would have secured him frequent mention by posterity; in all four he was outstanding.

As President-elect, Mr. Hoover visited the Lake Okechobee region to determine his responsibilities, as President, to prevent repetition of loss of lives.

As an Engineer, he saw plainly the potential of the dike as suggested by engineers.

As President, Mr. Hoover had the intestinal fortitude to tell his "smart boys" to re-write the fine print of governmental red tape, and come up with a workable program; as President and a Humanitarian, he ordered operations to begin — the dike was built under regulations for water transportation.

Mr. Hoover has been a friend of the Flood Control Program of South Florida, as operated by the Central & South Florida Flood Control, and many times dropped a word of friendly advice to the Congress.

All the Glades mourn his passing; all South Florida daily reap the benefit of the Engineer, the Humanitarian, the President and the Elder Statesman.

Sugarcane Damage Light From Isbell Loss In Early Vegetables Extensive

Vegetable crops in the Glades farming area were heavily damaged by hurricane Isbell last week but not as bad as expected. The leaning of crops brought more rainfall, crop damage here would have been more extensive.

SUGARCANE: Damage from hurricane Isbell was surprising by light. The eye of the storm passed directly over much of the cane producing area. Winds were from almost the identical direction of Hurricane Cleo's winds which came earlier in the year. This tended to flatten the already blown-over cane. There was little leaf shredding and small amount of broken and uprooted stalks, but cane production isn't expected to be materially affected. Some content of the cane may be lowered slightly because of the 5 inch rain that accompanied the storm.

Very little increase in harvesting costs is anticipated as a result of Isbell. When compared with last year, harvesting cost will be considerably higher this year because of damage occurring from Hurricane Cleo.

SWEET CORN: Growers in the Glades had planted 10,400

acres through the week of Oct. 10th. Much of this corn, both young and old, was flattened by the high winds. Practically all of the leaning of crops brought more rainfall, crop damage here would have been more extensive.

Some of the older acreage near maturity will be harvested, but large losses of both young and old acreage is evident. Harvest had begun the day before Isbell passed through. A small acreage near South Bay was brought in just before the storm hit.

CELERY: Most plants which had been transplanted in the Glades area last week were blown out of the ground. Older plants which had well established root systems were whipped and will probably be set back ten days to two weeks. No losses of older acreage are expected.

CABBAGE: Some of the plants in the Glades were washed up and blown out of the ground by the heavy rains and strong winds. Some acreage was plowed up and replanted, while other fields will survive. This crop suffered less damage than the other leaf crops in this area.

ESCAROLE, CHICORY, ROMAINE AND BOSTON LETTUCE: Acreage in the Glades suffered heavy damage. Many of the plants were covered with mud, and some fields were blown out of the ground. The strong winds and heavy rains. Growers will plow up and replace the plants. Acreage that recovers will be set back and will produce lower than average yields due to poor condition of the plants.

RADISHES: The crop suffered the least damage of any vegetable grown in the Glades area. Plants in most fields came through in good shape. The heavy rains and strong winds caused some washing, but losses were minor.

POTATOES: Winter acreage in the Glades did not receive serious damage. Some young plants were broken off and replanted. Growers were badly worried. However, full recovery is expected. Growth will be set back.

POLE BEANS: Acreage of beans for processing and fresh market in the Glades will be lost. All acreage was badly damaged and fresh beans that not lost will produce low yields.

You Would Have Had A Tough Time Trying To Get Into Or Out Of Belle Glade Last Wednesday Evening Or Thursday Morning

Winds of Gust Up To 100 Miles An Hour Played Havoris With The Trees Of This Area

Just trying to get to Canal Street would have been a problem. This street was completely blocked.

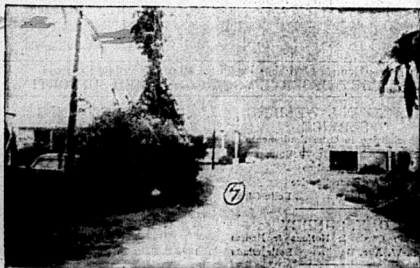

Even Goldwater would have had trouble. Here the huge political billboard is shown flattened, but it was back up real soon.

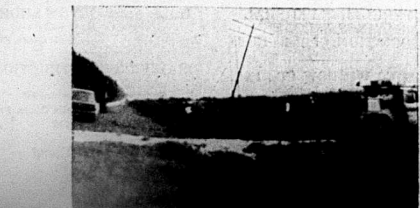

If a good thing you didn't try to get to Pahokee on Highway 41. You would never have made it. This highway was a mass of trees for several miles.

If, for any reason, you just had to leave town that evening, you would have been in trouble no matter what road you took. This is the Southern part of Airport Road near 715.

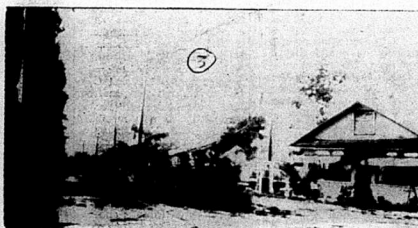

Power and telephone lines were down in all sections of town. Over 2600 phones were put out of commission in this area during Isbell's visit.

Telephone repair crews were busy from early Thursday morning of last week, straightening up and resetting telephone poles and trying to restore phone service in the area.

Beautiful Trees Are A Blessing But Some Times Trees Are Dangerous In A Hurricane

If you wanted to eat out, you might of made it to the Cottage Grill, if you knew how to gee-haw around the fallen trees.

Even the people of South Bay couldn't get to Belle Glade. Highway 80 was such a mass of trees they didn't get it cleared for two way traffic till about noon. Looking East out of South Bay on 80.

This palm tree near Police Headquarters just gave up fighting the storm and laid over on the roof of the library for a rest. However the Police Dept., saw too it that it was soon straightened up and braced.

Ever try to drive on a highway like this. It's not so good but this is what you faced on any major highway approaching Belle Glade. Road 80 to West Palm Beach.

Twisted steel is all that remains of the huge frame of a warehouse that was under construction at the Tallman Sugar Corp.

Everybody any anybody that could be pressed into service, started to work Thursday morning clearing of the trees and branches that clogged the highways leading to Belle Glade.

Power Lines Hit Heavy Blow

The Glades District of the Florida Power and Light Co., was hit hard by Hurricane Isbell last week and it was not till about noon on Saturday that service was restored to the last customer on the company's lines. The Company began to prepare for the Hurricane early Wednesday morning, and by noon crews from Naples, Ft. Myers, Venice, Sarasota, Bradenton, Punta Gorda and Arcadia were on their way to this area.

All in all, 70 outside crews were brought into the Glades district to make repairs and restore service. However, 7 of these outside crews and 3 supervisors were trapped on highway 80 by falling trees and could not get on the job for several hours. Major damage to trunk lines were suffered in Belle Glade and Pahokee areas. Feeder lines were hit hard all over the area, while damage to distributing lines to individual customers was reported all over the Glades District.

It was through the cooperation of restaurant owners, who opened early or closed later than usual and motel owners who saw to it that the men had a place to clean up, put on dry clothes and rest a bit, that kept the work moving. Garage owners in the area were also praised by the Company for their cooperation in keeping the trucks rolling with minor repairs during this period.

Without the cooperation of area people we would not have been able to restore service so soon," a spokesman said. Getting into the area became a problem for the power crews after 6:30 p. m. Wednesday. In some cases they had a number of crews stalled at some points, but local citizens and especially South Bay, led the men by back roads to Belle Glade.

Over 300 poles were down or badly leaning in the area and had to be reset. About 50 poles were broken and had to be replaced.

Some of the men worked for 18 hours with sleep. Most of the power service was restored in the Belle Glade area by 5:30 a. m. Thursday morning but some 250 customers in the Glades District were still without service Thursday night.

The power was restored to the last customer, a Bob Abel, near 20 mile bend, at 2:30 Saturday afternoon.

The Florida Power and Light Co. has over 9,000 customers in the Glades District, manager Curtis Chase announced.

Service Restored To 2600

The Southern Bell Telephone Co., was hard hit by hurricane Isbell last week when over 2600 telephones were put out of service in the Glades area. This number includes 500 telephones in Pahokee, which also suffered from high wind damage. The major part of the damage was to cables leading into and serving the area. However many lines were broken or downed by falling trees and loose objects blown about by the high winds.

The company lost very few telephone poles, but many were leaning and while still holding up lines, will have to be reset. Telephone line repairmen and cable splicers were rushed into the area, both from the East and West coast. They began to arrive in the Glades area in the early hours Thursday morning. The contractors who have been working in this area for some time, installing cables etc., were also pressed into service and also went to work to restore the lines.

According to Pete McClellan, manager of the Southern Bell in this area, service was restored by Friday afternoon, but it will take at least two weeks or more to restore or reset poles, put in permanent lines where temporary ones had been installed and clean up the mess left by the hurricane.

'Glades Follies' Superb Performance

The fact that a great amount of Glades talent goes begging for expression was recognized by a large and appreciative audience Saturday night when Xi Beta Sigma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi presented their second and final "Glades Follies of '64" at the High School auditorium.

The entire cast of some 80 people performed like seasoned troupers.

Attendance for their first performance on Thursday night was cut due last week's hurricane, which also interfered with their scheduled dress rehearsal. Their first public showing Thursday night was also their practice in costume.

Despite weather interference and tight schedules for many, the entire cast performed with a flourish.

Spotlighting "leading" characters becomes an arduous task, as each and every one contributed fully to an excellent musical. Folks generally were "amazed" at the pro-abilities of our many locals when guided by a professional director. The feeling was unanimous that Belle Glade should have more such entertainments.

"In my twenty-two years in the Glades this is undoubtedly the finest local entertainment yet," one viewer was heard to comment, and the expression

For New Year

Girl Scout Troops Are Organized And Meetings Getting Underway

Girl Scout troops have been organizing the past few weeks and some of them have started their weekly meetings. Hurricane Isabel forced cancellation of several meetings last week, but this week things are back in the swing.

Brownie Troops

This year there are 3 Brownie troops for girls in the second and third grades. None of these are sure yet what their troop numbers will be. One troop, organized to serve girls at the Gove School has as leaders, Mrs. James Markham and Mrs. James Thompson. They have 21 girls and will hold their second meeting this Thursday at 2:30 p.m. at Jameson Hall.

Another Brownie troop meets at Jameson Hall on Tuesday afternoons at 2:30 p.m. Their leaders are Mrs. G. U. Sprinkle and Mrs. Roland Whitlock. They number 15 girls of whom only two are third graders, so they have room for a few more third grade girls. Since their organizational meeting, they have had a meeting at which they worked on the Brownie promise, and the Brownie smile song. They made name tags and played a name game, and learned part of the Brownie story. This week they will get all ready to Hal- loween by making "Trick or Treat" bags.

The third Brownie troop has as leader Mrs. A. R. Miner. She does not yet have a co-leader. Their organizational meeting, scheduled for last Wednesday has been reset for this week.

Junior Troops

There are also three Junior troops to serve girls in the 4th, 5th and 6th grades. Troop 41 with leaders Mrs. Barnes Smith, Mrs. R. Y. Creech, Jr., Mrs. R. L. Holt and Mrs. Ray Roth are temporarily meeting on Thursdays at 7 p.m. at the Episcopal Church. They will probably change meeting place when the Gove School is occupied. Presently about 18 girls are attending their meetings, so they can accommodate a few more girls. Troop 281 has Mrs. Marian Chapman and Mrs. Frances Cove as leaders. Their first meeting was postponed because of Isabel, so they will meet this Thursday for the first time. They may change their meeting to another day of the week to accommodate girls in these three grades for whom a Thursday meeting is not convenient.

Troop 62, sponsored by the Altar Society of St. Philip's Church, has Mrs. Shirley Lavan and Mrs. Marge Buglioni as leaders. They will have their second meeting this Thursday at the Church Hall at 3 p.m. and will work on organizing patrols and electing officers. They will also discuss what badge the girls would like to work on this year. At present there are 13 girls meeting with this troop. It is open to any girl in the 4, 5 or 6th grades. It is not limited to Catholic girls, the leaders point out.

Troop 284, the Cadette troop has their own reporter, so their news is elsewhere in this issue.

Leaders Oriented

New leaders have been taking a leadership course designed to help them with their job and to help in total understanding of the Girl Scout program and

Captain H. L. Braddock Decorated For Service By Viet Nam Government

Captain Henry L. Braddock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Lee Braddock, 1541 W. Lake Road in Belle Glade, was recently decorated by the Vietnamese Government for services rendered to a Viet Nam combat unit.

Captain Braddock has served for more than a year in South Viet Nam, of which 10 months were with the combat unit.

In his letters home the Captain described the resort area near Qui Nhou "as just like Palm Beach County." There are beautiful homes in this section and the beach resembles any of the multitude of Florida beaches.

This is not the first award that Captain Braddock has won.

The 4,300-ton nuclear powered, attack submarine has the latest in detection and torpedo and missile fire control systems.

Tinosa will be assigned to Submarine Development Group Two and operate out of New London, Conn.

Nearly 6,000 Ford Motor Company tractor dealers, invited to the largest worldwide dealer meeting ever held by the tractor and equipment industry, met this weekend in New York City to view Ford's completely new line of tractors.

Among the dealers attending the meeting was Earl Byrd of the Hendry Tractor Company, Belle Glade, Florida, (left) greeted by Southeastern District Manager, H. T. King.

A combat infantry boot that had been bronzed occupies a place of honor in the family home here. The boot signifies Capt. Braddock's membership in the "Order of the Golden Boot." It was awarded while he was commanding officer of Co. A, 11th Battalion, Fort Jackson, S. C. from April of 1961 to April 1963.

There is also a framed diploma awarded to Braddock, then a first Lieutenant, for being the number one man in his class at the Defense Language Institute, the Presidio in California. Braddock was studying Vietnamese in this area.

Earl Byrd In N. Y.

He is at present a coordinator for the military with civilian authorities at Long Xuyen, in the province of An Giang in South Viet Nam. Braddock's parents have lived in Belle Glade for over 51 years and the Captain has many friends in this area.

Brakes Fail ... Car Goes In Canal

If your car is missing, don't worry, you will probably find it in one of the canals around the area.

This happened to Jess Thompson, 74, an employee of Senter Farms for about 6 years.

Thompson said he had parked his car about 11 p. m. to join Senter, who had driven to the farm to check on water damage to his vegetable crops. The vehicle was left on a side road that parallels a canal field. When Thompson and Senter returned to the parking place about two miles north of Airport Road at the intersection of Ramie Road, the car was missing.

The car was found some 12 hours after it was missed from its parking place, by two scuba divers from the West Palm Beach sheriff's office. The vehicle was pulled from the canal by Charles Parrish, the wrecker operator who was able to secure a line to the auto that apparently backed into the water.

Det. L. O. J. Senecal said it appeared the brake on the auto failed to hold and a high wind that was blowing at the time may have started the vehicle rolling toward the canal.

Youngs Attend Homecoming At Univ. Of Fla.

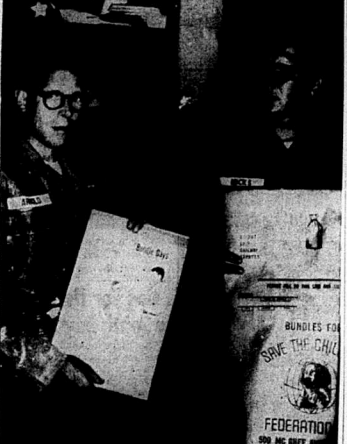

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Young traveled to Gainesville last weekend for a visit with their children, Jane and Chappy, and to enjoy the festivities of homecoming at the University of Florida.

More than sixty thousand people were said to have been in Gainesville for the annual affair.

The tremendous crowd saw Florida out play South Carolina for a score of 37 to 0.

Mrs. Clara Eaton, mother of Mrs. Young, returned here with her daughter for a two weeks visit.

Help Our Guard Boys Help The Children!

Each member of the Glades Unit of the Florida National Guard will be filling a bag similar to the one in the picture with children's clothing donated by Glades folks.

You will be asked to give whatever clothing for children you may have, including shoes, and you will know that whatever is given will be delivered by a recognized organization to the needy. This drive is especially for children in the southern mountains areas of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia and will be handled by Save The Children Federation, Inc., a corporation, NOT FOR PROFIT.

General McMillan, Florida's

Adjutant General, in announcing the Guard's sponsorship of the annual Bundle Day Clothing Collection, says:

"Anyone in Florida may help in this humanitarian project by taking their used clothing to the Florida National Guard Army opposite the hospital. Now with winter approaching and the need for good used clothing so urgent we hope that everyone will take a few minutes to bundle up their no longer needed clothing when requested, or take it to the National Guard Army."

Both summer and winter garments and shoes are needed — the clothing need not be perfect but should be clean and in wearable condition.

The collected clothing will be shipped to the Processing Center or Save The Children Federation in Knoxville, Tennessee, where it will be cleaned, mended and repaired if need be for distribution. The clothing will be distributed to needy children and their families at token prices throughout many clothing centers of the federation, or distributed free where need be, in disaster areas and through recognized authorities in the Southern Mountain areas of Kentucky, Tennessee and western part of Virginia. Save the children also maintains a stockpile of clothing for natural disasters that may occur anywhere. Recently 20,000 pounds of winter coats were offered to the victims of the Alaska earthquake.

Agriculture Census Needs Enumerators

The Atlanta regional office of the U. S. Bureau of the Census announces that the recruiting of enumerators for the 1964 Census of Agriculture in Palm Beach County started on October 19, 1964.

Persons interested in earning extra income by means of this temporary employment with the Census Bureau should apply to the following crew leader: John W. Hooker, 1709 W. Lake Rd., Belle Glade, Florida, Phone 996-6370.

Qualifications for appointment as an enumerator include the following: U. S. Citizenship, age of at least 18 years, high school education or its equivalent, availability of car for use in enumeration, good physical condition for driving, walking, and standing, financial support through period of employment (wages are paid at the conclusion of the enumeration), and the ability to write clearly and neatly and to pass a written examination.

Enumerators are to be paid on a piece-work basis for collecting completed census questionnaires that have been mailed out in advance to farm and ranch operators in the district for which the enumerator is responsible. Daily pay is expected to range from $10-$18. They will also receive 8 cents a mile for a car allowance. The period of employment for enumerators will last about three weeks.

Each enumerator will be trained by a census crew leader. The training consists of a 4-day home study course followed by a written examination.

Senator Holland Visits Palm Beach County

Kenneth Kirchman Receives UNIVAC Promotion In NASA

Mrs. Ruth S. Kirchman, Belle Glade, has received word this week, of the appointment of her son, Kenneth, as Manager of the Southeastern Division, NASA Marketing, by UNIVAC, a Division of the Sperry Rand Corporation. His headquarters are at Huntsville, Alabama. In addition to his management of mar- keting for the area, he is also Coordinator of Communications between all UNIVAC depart- ments serving NASA in the Southeast.

Kenneth has made an out- standing record with UNIVAC, and his friends rejoice with his family for the recognition evi- denced by this important assign- ment.

In the past, NASA reports that its' total efforts have been directed toward basic research, and the applied sciences with sales efforts being handled by regional organizations. Mr. Kirchman has been selected as part of a new emphasis on mar- keting "because of his thorough knowledge of large scale computing systems and his un- derstanding of NASA objectives and motivations."

Second DWI Charge Draws Heavy Fine

Never give a Judge the op- portunity to check your record if you are in the habit of driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicants.

The point was proved last week when Fred Booth, 45, who claims to be from Birmingham, Ala., pleaded not guilty when charged with driving against him by Deputy Sheriff Dean Alford. It gave Judge James L. Tyson Jr., a chance to check his record.

It was discovered that Booth had been arraigned on a simi- lar charge before Judge Tyson on Jan. 13th. A guilty plea at that time resulted in a $125 fine and a suspension of Booth's Alabama operator's license.

When the case was called for

Senior United States Senator Spessard Holland is shown looking over the site for the proposed new Baptist College in Palm Beach Gardens. trial later in the week, the Judge inquired if he was not the same man that appeared in Janu- ary.

Booth replied that he was, and Judge Tyson then ordered an automatic 10-day jail stay plus $100 fine or an additional 10 days in the county jail.

"Saving Viet Nam"

Many Americans may not realize that on October 10th this nation had been "at war" for 1,129 days.

As of that day, 202 Americans were killed in action, 1,170 were wounded, 7 missing in action and 9 have been captured in Viet Nam.

It was on November 17, 1961, the administration, with Johnson as one of the chief advisers, ordered several hundred army "specialists" to Viet Nam. Today Johnson has more than a full division of American fighting men engaged in that heartbreaking, bloody struggle.

From all reports coming in, it would appear that this country is not doing so good at "saving Viet Nam."

The American people have the right to say, "Either get in and win or get out," but one way or another, put a stop to this waste of American lives, American equipment and millions of Americans dollars.

Rain or Shine

Around The Clock Service

We have been in Belle Glade two months now and already been through two hurricanes. We feel that we can speak with some authority when we say this town is the best in the nation when it comes to "know-how" to live through a hurricane.

When it became known that hurricane Isbell was headed straight for "Vinegar Bend," (We are going to look up the history of that place some day) there was a bee hive of activity all over town.

Merchants and property owners boarded up windows. Loose objects were tied down or taken indoors, housewives hurried to stock up with groceries and gas stations did a land office business all afternoon and early evening.

There was no undue excitement, no fuss. Just an orderly approach to a coming event and no one knew what the outcome would be.

The local Civil Defense people were on a standby basis and their hurricane tracking crew kept a running record of Isbell with every report that came over the air.

Calls Start Early

However, it was the local Police Department that really "stood out" all through the evening and night. The entire department was called on duty early in the afternoon and even during the heights of the storm, could be seen cruising up and down the business and residential areas of the community to see if the people were safe or in need of help.

Some people did need help. Shortly after the winds began to snap off trees and branches, reports began to come into police headquarters.

"A car was trapped in the Chosen area." "A car with a lone lady driver was caught on Highway 80 and couldn't move." "A car taking some one to the hospital couldn't get through or turn around."

No excitement—no fuss—just routine calls. Someone needed help. Police cars rolled out into the wind and rain, so strong the palm trees were "signaling" at a 90 degree angle and you couldn't even see the front of your car.

The car in Chosen was on its way shortly after the policemen helped the driver remove a tree limb from the road.

Two officers drove out 80 to find the "lone lady in a car" and they became trapped by falling trees, both in front and behind their car. It took reinforcement and three hours work before they were able to get "out of the trees" and return to headquarters. The "lone lady in a car"—well she was not there, but there were other cars and trucks, headed in both directions, that couldn't move. Those that wanted help, the police saw to it that they got back to town in safety.

Hospital Road Kept Open

The car on its way to the hospital was soon free and able to go on its way. The police worked hard to keep that road open "just in case," but the wind was so strong that trees and branches began to cover the road and when a huge tree, almost 3 feet across, crashed down one of the men was injured and they gave up. However, the police department saw to it that other departments and equipment were notified and the hospital road was kept open, except for a short time at the height of the storm.

One policeman was seen wearing a rubber suit for protection. He became so water-logged that he had as much water inside his rubber pants as he had outside. He finally took off both the pants and coat and went on his way, soaking wet from head to foot, but still on duty. That same officer was seen some four hours after the peak of the storm, still "on duty."

All Thru The Night

All through the storm and all through the night, the men in the Belle Glade police department kept watch and helped where needed.

Their work is with "trouble"—a trouble in any form—rain or shine, day or night.

No excitement—no fuss—just another day, another night of police work. We don't know of a better example of "when a fellow needs a friend" than when a hurricane visits a community. Nor do we know of a better "friend" than the men who work on the Belle Glade Police Department.

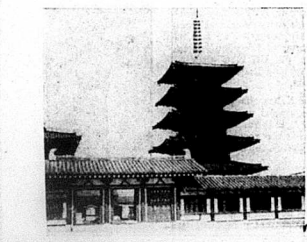

They know their business and they tend to their business. In this day and age, that is tops in any community.

The Orient Can Be Most Interesting

Two Belle Glade ladies, Ruth Wedgworth and Edith Freedlund were privileged to make a tour of the Orient this summer, and their reports of places visited, things seen and their observations, we believe, are very interesting reading. We offer this report, as of interest to teenagers, in school, to grownups for the observations on the life of the Orientals and descriptive report.

JAPAN

By Edith Freedlund

SHITENNOJI TEMPLE - Built in 593, it is one of the oldest temples in Japan. After the World War II temple, with its five-storied pagoda and other main buildings, has been reconstructed in its original form. (See Picture).

We visited Ise Jingu Grand Shrine where they worship salt, beads, and mirrors. We watched people as they came up to a bar covered with a white cloth. They clapped their hands a few times, bowed their heads, then threw a coin into a box. We learned that they had collected over seven million dollars here the past year in contributions. The traditional sacred dance, "Okagura" was performed for us. We had to take our shoes off, as usual and sat on straw mats. There were six older men with various instruments making music (or noise) and someones humming. This sounded very mournful. A priest in a green robe came out and prayed, bowing low. There were four dancing girls in white robes and long red pants below their feet. They had fresh flowers in their hair, and two maids who waited on them. There were containers of rice and vegetables, but no meat. The priests chanted and clapped their hands. This was a slow steady dance and took a lot of training. It is a shame we could not understand what it all meant. A priest came up with tall branches and "purified" us and served us Sake in small almost flat earthenware Sake cups. These were given to us as souvenirs.

We spent the night at the Osaka Grand Hotel. This is the second largest city in Japan. The hotel presented us with a Booklet showing famous people who had stayed there while performing—Italian Opera Group, Eartha Kitt, Glenn Miller, Ella Fitzgerald, and many others. In the basement under the hotel are hundreds of shops as far as you can see in all directions. We had to count the number of corners we turned, as there were crowds of people and not a single American. It seemed strange not to be at all frightened even though we knew very few people could understand us. We were warned early on the trip to have something with us that had the name of our hotel, so we could tell it became lost. I usually had a match folder with me. Consequently, I have a collection of very colorful and different match folders from the hotels where we stopped. We visited the Bank of Japan and Osaka Castle before leaving on a boat trip of four or five hours thru the inland sea. This was a rather large boat, and we were assigned a stateroom in case we wished to rest. We had a choice of refreshments, which included tea, beer or coco cola. There were interesting islands and mountains all around us.

It was interesting to see our first Hydrofoil skim over the water.

We had lunch at Kobe, the home of the world famous Kobe beef. The animals are fed beer and massaged, the result being the most tender beef in the world. We were served fillet mignon steak at lunch on the train and again at night in the Hotel. Kobe also has the largest boat building industry in the world. Osaka has a Baseball Stadium that seats 80,000. This seems to be the favorite sport in Japan, and was introduced by America in 1873.

At Takamatsu we stayed at Kawaraku Inn, an authentic Japanese Inn. At the foot of the steps at the entrance, we left our shoes, and put our feet into slides left there for our convenience. Our shoes would be nicely polished when we needed them again. We were ushered to our four room suite, and took off our slides as we entered, as there were straw mats on the floor. These Tatami mats are 3x6 feet, and a room is described as to its size by the number of mats in it. The first small room was for our baggage. Next to that was a good sized room with the traditional wall hanging on one side of the room, and next to that was an enclosure with an attractive vase, with flowers arranged in oriental manner, then another enclosure with a statue in it. Shortly afterward we were served tea. We sat on the floor at a round table in the center of the room. Next was a screened porch that looked out on a small riverlet and some small evergreen trees. The private bathroom was across a small outside entrance with rocks to step on, but within the walled area. The tile work in the bathroom was new and attractive of pebble tile floor, and a large drain in the floor, with a shower head on the wall. The sunken Japanese tub was deep and made of square green tile. There was a small three legged stool and wooden bucket to be used when you soaped yourself. All soap must be rinsed off before entering the tub of hot water. This is what you read about, and was much more attractive than we expected. They gave us Kimonos of cotton to put on to eat our supper. In later some of us walked down the street looking into shop windows. Two young men laughed and said, "Go home." Later we learned that these were sleeping kimonos that we had worn outside. When we left the next morning, all the staff were outside waving goodbye to us. Since 10% of the trip was there was no tipping, and no other during the trip acted as if he expected to be paid. From what we heard, this is very much different than traveling in Europe, where the hand is out continually for money.

Is Peace On Earth Attainable Now?

By Lewis Llewellyn

"On earth peace; goodwill toward men." "Peace is something we talk about a great deal, these days, but of which we have very little."

Though we are nominally at peace, as a nation, our military men are engaged in a conflict in South Viet Nam which has cost the lives of a number of men—and the end is not in sight. We want peace and the South Vietnamese want peace—on our terms. The Viet Cong Communists want peace—on their terms. So there is no peace.

When Khrushchev was asked recently what he thought of the prospects for peace in 1965, he declined to give an answer. Earlier, speaking to a group of Japanese leaders, he had mentioned a terrible new weapon which he said the Soviet Union had just shown him. At the same time, he declared himself in favor of peace.

When Communists say that they are for peace, they are sincere. But what they seem to mean is, "Please be peaceful while we take over the nations of the world, one by one, until we are ready to bury you."

Those who are not content to go along with this program are branded as war-mongers.

Communists and fellow-travelers are putting on a series of "peace" meetings and inviting American churchmen to participate in the furthering of this effort.

But international peace is not the peace to which the Bible refers when it mentions Christ "having made peace by the blood of His cross."

This peace is personal peace—peace with God and peace with ourselves.

The Bible says, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on Thee, because he trusteth in Thee."

Men cannot have personal peace when they are not at peace with God.

But, despite the turmoil around us, we may have peace with God if we will come to Him in faith and humility. Therefore, He and as justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Luke 2:14

About The Good Old Days

I don't think the "good old days" were as good as a lot of old people think they were. George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, and my great-grandfather, a mighty smart man but not one of them ever saw a sewing machine, and the man who invented the sewing machine had to wait 'til some other man invented a needle with the eye on the point before we could use Benjamin Franklin found out something about electricity but he didn't know what it would do or what anybody could do with it.

None of those men ever saw a telephone, or a telephone pole, and I don't think they knew anything about telegrams. They didn't hardly know what a railroad was, and some of the big old steam locomotives would have scared them to death. I doubt if they knew anything about the United States or the kind the horses used to pull in some of the cities. I don't know what any of them would have done if they happened to see a 1964 automobile, or a radio, or a TV.

In the "good old days" they didn't have a Frigidaire in the kitchen, an air conditioner in the living room or an electric light anywhere. I'll bet all of them would have crawled under a haystack or hid in the cellar if a jet plane had made two or three passes overhead.

All of the ice they had in the "good old days" was cut on some river up in Maine in the winter time or off of some ice pond in other places and stored in ice houses dug in the ground and covered over with something that looked like a big chicken coop. If you had told any of those old boys that a man could take off from Cape Kennedy in a rocket and orbit the earth 20 odd times at 18,000 miles an hour, and come back alive, they would have sent you to Chattanooga, Millville, Macon, Staunton or somewhere else, just to get you out of the way.

When they were fighting their wars in the "good old days" with flintlocks and muzzle-loaders, one man with a machine-gun could have come along and wiped out both sides, but nobody would have known who won.

I don't think anybody knew what a plumber was in the "good old days." And I don't think that had any bathrooms where you could take a bath. They had a little house called a privy, and the gardener that somebody said Chas. Sales built, but they didn't even have the luxury of a last year's Sears and Roebuck catalog for everyday use. I don't think I would have liked it much in the "good old days."

And how, this fellow allowed as how the biggest mistake the American housewife makes is not just accepting her husband for what he is. It was at least two things wrong with that state ment. First, old miss women accept their husband for what he is, but the great problem is they still got to accept him for what he thinks he is. That makes a big difference, Mister Editor. In the second place, this fellow kept talking about the American "housewife" and this, I know most women who are that word when they fill the Government forms and appear on these give-away programs. But they weren't many women that stay in the house any more. Farmers and ranchers wives was still a fair to middling housewife, but even they was getting more and more out of the house and into the car. What we're getting in this country today is the "car-wife" and this fellow was running too late with too little. In his little talk last night he was overrated about four good opportunities to set down. But my old lady thought it was fine, and for the sake of good "family relations" I agreed with her one hundred per cent.

I'm always glad when them high rollers get off the picture and some of the old down spittoon politicians comes on. They talk in a tongue I can understand, but even the time he's telling lies and I know he's telling lies and he knows I know and it gives us both a good feeling of mutual understanding and enjoyment. I was reading in the papers the other day where some skykitter from Harvard was claiming by the year 2000, the human race would be half insane. That ain't but 36 year off and I don't believe, Mister Editor, folks can hold out that long if they get many more world-wide wars between like the Beatles, foreign aid and General DeGaulle, per se. I won't be here, so I'll let you worry. Yours truly, Uncle Dan

Non Govt. Health Insurance Provided

At the end of 1963, there were over 1,800 insurance organizations providing the American public with health insurance for the hospital, surgical, and medical expense resulting from injury or illness and for loss of income accompanying such disability, the Health Insurance Institute reported today.

These organizations consisted of insurance companies, Blue Cross, Blue Shield plans, Medical Society-approved plans, and other medical-surgical plans.

The net total of persons with health insurance provided by these organizations was 145,328,000 at the close of last year, and some $7.8 billion in health insurance benefits were distributed among these insured persons during 1963.

Last year, there were 903 insurance companies actively insuring health insurance policies, up from 879 the year before. Also engaged in providing health insurance protection to Autobiography takes as many forms as there are authors writing about themselves. The honest ones will admit, "I'm not Wordsworth out of context" "We feel that we are greater than we know."

You will find these three widely different autobiographical works are all good ones, if you don't hold writing about yourself against the author. A Vanished World. Anne G. Sneller.

Professor Thomas O'Donnell, of Ulica College, says of this book, "I enjoyed A VANISHED WORLD more than any other book of its kind that I have ever read." There should be a sizeable crowd of people joining him in this testimonial.

Her story is ordinary, an account of the Moulton family, of Onondaga County, New York, during the last half of the nineteenth century. What is not ordinary is its good balance, and particularly, its freedom from sentimentality. It doesn't get sticky, as so many of the kind tend to do. The detail in it pays tribute to a keen memory, flicking in the most deft childhood, as over a vanished world.

Syracuse University Press is the publisher of this superior bit of "escape reading." Teacher, Sylvia Ashton-Warner.

If you teach anywhere at all—school, Sunday School or at home, this book is for you. By the author of SPINSTER, who taught among the Maoris of New Zealand for twenty-four years, it bursts with dedication to a cause, and conveys it with just one reading. Two readings should make a radical of you.

Coming from her diaries, with retrospective editing, she formulated a new method in her infant rooms (for children five to seven) which initiated the Maori into civilization without deforming their spirits. Though hers was a special setting, the technique could be used by other in-to-the-rooms, children being children the world over.

Her creative method uses a key vocabulary, words that have impact with children, like ghost, and kiss, or dance. The book is illustrated with photographs from her class room. A Moveable Feast. Ernest Hemingway.

Dear Mr. Jones:
 I am a patient in the Glades General Hospital, and my husband, also, as a result of the hazardous road conditions the result of Hurricane Isbell. The Glades Road Department had better consider these trees.

It has cost the lives of several people, and almost cost my life. I was in the R. W. Griffin, Wednesday night. We taxpayers are paying enough to do something about it. Everyone who drives thinks that it is time the State Road Department start immediately to cut the trees. I wish they would do something else beside the road.

Yours truly,
 Martha Griffin
 618 E. Main Street
 Belle Glade, Florida

A tree was across the road, near the Glades Bowling Lanes, and her husband apparently came upon it quite suddenly, and had an accident.

Do The Best You Can With What You Have... Jerry Walsh Speaks To Students

Jerry Walsh, named "Handicapped American of the Year" by President Lyndon B. Johnson on April 30 spoke to BGHS students October 14 during an assembly program.

His message was a moving experience for all. Mr. Walsh emphasized the fact that ability counts and brought out the dangers of quackery.

His handicap is rheumatoid arthritis which left him totally crippled at the age of eighteen. The doctors had told Mr. Walsh he would remain in bed for the rest of his life. But due to modern medicine and the courage and determination in surmounting the rheumatoid arthritis, he was out of bed after seven and a half years.

Mr. Walsh was selected by the President's committee on employment of the handicapped from nominees all over the country. He is the 13th winner and the first arthritis to win such an honor. He also had the honor of

Remember When?

We melted crayons to make candles. There was the "Slick Chick" club.

No one wanted to bring their towels for nap time. We always got in trouble for ruining the rose bushes.

It was "I grind coffee, I grind tea..."

Everyone fought to give out the paper towels and the Boraxo Roller skating on the tennis courts was THE thing.

We bought B.B. bats and red hot bubble gum at the park. We exchanged things for good luck on tests.

We all blew bubbles in our milk cartons. The kids made "swords" with pins and beads.

We called Phys. Ed. "Play Period."

We had the Maypole dance. Miss O'Kelley broke her yard stick.

It was stilt and sunflower seed to the student body.

All the girls wore pony-tails. The faculty thought "Red Rover" was too dangerous to play.

We got excited over doing finger painting. We had lizards for pets.

The girls danced with each other. We played musical chairs on rainy days.

We wore pennies in our loafers.

Homecoming Day?

The question, will we have a homecoming this year, was brought up at the Student Council meeting Thursday morning. It was delayed until an okay could be secured from the office.

Last year was the first one that was held in a decade of several years. The students did a wonderful job decorating floats. All spectators greeted and applauded the fine work done by the students.

Homecoming is looked upon as an occasion in which all join together to show their pride in the school's team. The enthusiasm and joy that goes into this event is memorable for all who take part.

The members were asked to assist at Conference Day. They were to direct parents to the proper rooms.

FTA Discusses Convention Plans

Plans are being made for the annual FTA State Convention to be held at the Jack Tar Harrison Hotel in Clearwater. The convention will take place November 20 through 22 and five members will represent the local club. Schools throughout the state are represented and each club is asked to participate in some way.

Also on the agenda for the recent club meeting was the selection of the teacher of the month to be featured at a later date.

The members interested in the tutoring program to be conducted this year were asked to contact Jo Vickers. This is the first time such a program will be conducted and further plans will be made before announcement to the student body.

As the evening's program a film was shown entitled "A Good Grades Help Successful Life"

What kind of a world do you live in? Do you want to live in a world of merriment or sorrow, a world of peace or war, a sweet world or a sorrowful world?

Here is a contrast that should help stress the point. "Oh! If I had gotten an education, then this world of terror would not be mine." And, "What a world of merriment and happiness education has brought to me." We plan and live without an education seldom succeeds and a person with an education seldom fails.

When Edgar Allen Poe wrote in one of his poems, "Let my Future radiant shine, possibly he was referring to his educational future. Though he was dismissed from two colleges, it was not for lack of knowledge or the willingness to secure an education. Poe knew of the wealth in education and loved her for Education is the key that unlocks the door to the world and all that it contains: success, happiness and life itself. Yes, the grass is greener on the other side of the hill. But, where or how is this hill? The hill is all vision, hard work and most of all education.

This is a world of sweets and sorrow. But, only the educated know how to secure the sweets and avoid the sorrows.

Your Conversation Reveals Real You

If you often wonder what kind of impression you make, and more important - what kind of person you are, the surest way to find out is to check your conversation.

A wise man once said that those who think big talk about ideas, average thinkers about events, and small minds about people. Without realizing it, people often disclose their personalities by what they say.

To get a closer look at personality as revealed by conversation, we hope you'll consider each of the following statements before speaking.

1. Avoid gossip. Everyone knows it's easy to fall into this common trap when you get together with the gang.

2. Practice listening. A little more than talking. Often it's easy to get carried away on a particular subject. You feel you're well informed on a member that others may have of their own.

3. Don't say nice things if they aren't true. Some people think they may gain something by so doing. But, does flattery REALLY win and lose?

4. Faithfully keep things a secret when you are asked to do so. Your confidence is well worth your time.

After checking this list, you should know how you stack up in this vital area of communication.

Stuart Meets Rams

The Stuart Tigers will meet the Rams on the Tigers field October 23.

Both teams are pretty evenly matched with their win-loss records. The Rams' record is 4-1 while the Tigers record is 3-2.

Although Stuart held Palm Beach to only 14 points, the Rams are confident that this game will be marked in the records as another victory for them.

Science Club Open To New Members

The first Science Club meeting of this year was held Thursday night at 7:30.

The purpose of the science club is to promote an interest in science and the careers which exist for both boys and girls in the different scientific fields. They are going to try to get guest speakers from Pratt-Whitcomb Overglades Experiment Station, local doctors, and visiting scientists sponsored by the National Science Foundation.

Each member is required to have a science fair project and is eligible to join the Florida Jr. Academy of Science. The State Science Convention will be held March 12-14 at Florida State University in Tallahassee.

The officers for the coming year are: Farrell Kaufman, president; George Cervera, Vice-President; Phil Phillips, Student Council Rep.

Anyone interested in joining the Science Club is asked to contact one of these officers immediately.

Professional Salesman Ship

By Dr. Richard E. Stanley
Associate Professor of Marketing
Jacksonville University

Grandpa may have needed a lot of convincing before he bought that newfangled indoor plumbing. And we all know that the silly looking contraption with the crank in front that goes, by dang, ten miles an hour, and that ain't even down hill, will never replace the horse.

Yes, people have a history of resisting change, of being slow to adopt new and useful products and services that raise their standard of living. Some times needs are not even recognized by the person wanting. It's the job of the professional salesman to make people and businessmen aware of their needs, to help them choose what they do want, and by doing this, to grant us all a full, comfortable and meaningful existence.

COLLEGE, YES!

College? Definitely! To qualify for the better positions in professional selling, you should complete a well-rounded college business education. Courses in marketing, management, economics, and other business areas are particularly necessary as they teach you how business work. As one never seeks a laboratory job without training in science, one shouldn't seek a sales position without training in business.

College, Yes!

To be a professional salesman, you must sincerely like helping people to solve their problems. Knowing your person, as well as your products, is essential.

Thus, subjects such as psychology and sociology are important to you. English, writing and public speaking are valuable in making a purchase.

The top positions in many corporations are going to professional salesmen. Professional salesmen are in great demand today, and their salaries and working conditions are among the best in the nation. Professional salesmen are looked to for information and advice on products, help in selection and service, value for money spent.

The salesman must be a professional salesmen, buyers would be severely handicapped in making a purchase.

The professional salesman sells to industrial buyers, wholesalers, retailers and consumers. Regardless of clientele, he can be recognized by his product knowledge, knowledge of his company, his sincere efforts to be of service, and his pride in salesmanship as a profession.

In Other Words

If you're ever required to give a full and proper description of a cow for your biology class, this definition might serve the purpose.

A cow is a completely automatic milk manufacturing feature consisting of two udders. It is encased in untanned leather and mounted on four vertical, movable supports, one on each corner.

The front end contains the cutting and grinding mechanism, as well as the headlights, air inlet and exhaust, two bumpers and a foghorn. At the rear is the dispensing apparatus and automatic flycatcher.

The central portion houses a hydro-chemical conversion plant. This consists of four fermentation and storage tanks connected in series by an intricate network of flexible plumbing.

The section also contains the heating plant complete with automatic temperature controlling station and main venting system. Despite its intricacies, it doesn't get out of fix very often.

In brief the externally visible features consist of two lockers, two hookers, four stand-uppers, four hanger-downers, and a swishy swish in other words, a cow is a wonderful somebody, so while you're drinking your next glass of milk, don't take it so much for granted.

Spooner Again; Rams Nip Tigers 15-13

The Golden Rams used a 32-yard touchdown play and a last minute safety to gain a come from behind victory over previously undefeated Clewiston Friday night.

The Rams scored first when tackle Johnny Spooner scooped up a fumble to tally. This is interesting to note is the second time Johnny has scored in the past two weeks.

In the second period, Clewiston pulled a double reverse and scored from the 29 yard line. The extra point kick made the score 7-7 at halftime.

Clewiston's second score came on a run, and put them ahead 13-7.

The Rams started a dramatic comeback staging in the third quarter. Tony Latour threw a pass to end Bryant Davis on the Tiger 32. Davis lateraled to John Lee Henderson who ran the final yards. The try for the extra point failed.

After an exchange of punts, the Tigers were set back to their own five yard line with only 38 seconds left to play. On their first play they tried an end sweep, but were nailed behind the goal line by Steve Halbrook and Max Out, for the winning two points.

Ram Halbrook, Bucky Holt were the leading rusher with 73 yards to his credit in 11 tries.

Student Vacation Calendar

The students who enjoyed the day off Friday will have a while to wait for the next vacation. Through the 145 more days of school, 18 days of relief are scheduled. Some may find consolation in the fact that they have three more days to goof off than their teachers.

Everyone will be off on November 11 celebrating Veterans' Day. A few weeks of school and then we will be commemorating Thanksgiving Day, November 25 and also 27. The longest holidays are at Christmas time from December 21 to January 1.

There are three weekends to relax and make New Year's resolutions. This is the time when most people are resolving to do something about their grades.

On January 25 teachers will grade and finish their work for the end of the first semester. The students will have this time to recuperate from the semester tests. Now is when some start to really work.

After two solid months of work, students will be dismissed for the winter break. March 19 while teachers will be attending state meetings. The faculty and student body will be out for Easter on January 19 and 20. This will be a welcomed break after continuous studies and spring fever.

As the school year draws to a close, the students will have their last day off on June 3. Teachers will be preparing final reports and records.

These vacation days are well earned. Some are traditional holidays. Others are beneficial rest periods to enable teachers and students to regenerate their enthusiasm for knowledge.

Benefit Dance & Bar-B-Que Dinner Held

A benefit dance was given in playing music to make those who love barbecue so well? The band parents and members of the band along with Mr. Jackson, the music director, wish to express appreciation to the agriculture department for providing the meat, and to the students participating on the Lake Shore High Jazz Band. Who would believe so many of

Mimi's Column

Well, here I am to break the ice. I hope I don't hit you. J. H., I hear that you have eyes for a junior, E. M. Is this true love?

D. C. A., don't you have a little competition with J. S.? Keep on pushing if you think you are qualified.

R. W., are you still being accused of that particular senior? Just tell her, she isn't qualified. B. L., what do you plan to do, be an old maid all your life? Maybe the right fellow will come along.

M. A. P., are you going to wait for J. S.? After all, you know, you might be doing the right thing.

I understand that a particular senior, E. S., is tight on a particular freshman, L. M. How is this going to work out?

B. T., do you still have that crush on C. S., or are you just pretending to be in love?

J. G., you thought you pulled a fast one on me by going to the dance with S. H., but you were seen, ah! 'nol' ho!

E. C., I notice that since C. H. is back on the scene, you have put D. G. down gently.

It seems as if A. B. and R. A. have a thing going on. As you know, I see everything.

I. P., I would like to inform you that J. B. escorted L. J. W. home after the dance, Friday night. Get hip with the latest.

R. B., I must say that your little black book is handy when it comes to looking up girls, such as A. M., C. G., H. W., and P. H.

A senior, B. A., is attempting to put a junior, S. H., out of existence with J. F. Is she going to succeed?

Why do so many young ladies look forward to C. S.? It has been said that G. M. was seen on the scene with C. S.

I heard that a certain senior, D. S., has reached the matrimonial stage. Is that how strong her love is?

Be aware of what you do because Mimi will be watching you.

Bobcat Run Down

There wasn't any action for the "Bobcats" this week, but they are looking forward to the Bobcats' V. S. Stuart game Friday, October 16, 1964. The game will be played in Stuart, Florida, on the Stuart athletic field at 8:00 p. m.

The "Bobcats" have been rated six touchdowns over the Stuart Lions.

If the "Bobcats" continue the good work, they will become class A conference champions. So far, there is only one team, the "Maroon Devils" of Roseville High, West Palm Beach, Florida, that is holding the "Bobcats" down.

Good luck boys! The Lake Shore Family is behind you.

Homecoming Spirit Hits Lake Shore High School

By Thomas Coleman

The atmosphere at Lake Shore High School is whirling with the spirit of Homecoming as the mighty "Bobcats" launch the Eagles into orbit. This "spirit" initiated with the election of Emma Davis over the Homecoming Activities. According to faculty chairman, Mr. James Monroe and co-chairman, Miss Norma Dumcobe, this is promised to be one of the greatest Homecoming events witnessed in the history of our school.

James Brown, senior, student of the Week

Granny Advises:

Dear Granny,
There's this fellow that I like, but seemingly, he doesn't know that I am alive. I've tried in several ways to get his attention. Apparently, I have failed. What can I do?
Anxious

Dear Anxious,
Don't be too anxious and become a boy chaser. Boys reject girls who are flirt and attention callers. Develop a good sense of humor, be respectful, and share his interests. Relax and don't become too conspicuous whenever he is around.
Granny

Dear Granny,
I am a senior at Lake Shore High School. My problem is that I have a boyfriend that doesn't seem to care about me anymore. He seems to notice other girls more than me. Tell me what to do.
Confused

Dear Confused,
It is obvious that your boyfriend has lost interest in you. If you really want to gain his interest again try to find yourself. Learn his interests and try to have more versatility within yourself. If this doesn't work forget about him, and find a new interest.

Lake Shore High Junior Bobcats Win Frst Game Of Season

GIGANTIC PARADE PLANNED

The members of the Lake Shore High School Student Council have already begun planning for their big homecoming parade which will be held October 23, 1964, at 4:30 p. m.

The members of the student council would like to invite everyone out on this date to take a glance at the beautifully decorated cars and floats that will be seen in our parade. We feel that your presence will add to our school spirit and homecoming festivities.

The members of the student council are striving to have one of the largest and most exciting homecoming parades that has ever been given in Belle Glade. We hope that by having this large, exciting homecoming parade the general public will be influenced to come out and see the "Mighty Bobcats" like the Eagles to the Cemetery.

Student Of The Week

By Celester Hollingsworth
Each week the "Bobcat" page will feature an article entitled, "Student of the Week." This student will be chosen upon the following qualifications:

- A. Must maintain at least a B average.
- B. Must be a member of some organization.
- C. Must be loyal and dependable.
- D. Must rank high in character and service.

According to these qualifications, James Garfield Brown, the son of Essie Mae Brown, of 565 S. W. 13th St., and a native of Belle Glade was chosen as student of the week.

James has attended Lake Shore High for five years. He has maintained a "B" average. His ambition is to become a Science teacher. James is president of the Student Council vice-president of the Dramatics Club, reporter of the senior class and last but not least, co-captain of the football team.

James says:

"I am very proud that I have been selected to be the first student of the week. I have dedicated my services faithfully to help and to improve the general principles and character at Lake Shore. To do such is my goal."

"In order for me to successfully accomplish this goal I must have the full co-operation from you, the students, at Lake Shore. Come on and help me to improve our school."

Driver Education

By Eloise West
The Lake Shore driving education class has begun. The new instructor is Mr. Sutton, a former football coach. There are about 125 students enrolled in driver education this semester. The students are now studying the theory of driving. The driving test will be administered October 21, by Mr. O'Connell of the Highway Patrol. After the test and license are issued, driving will take place.

We were fortunate this year to secure a "95 Dodge" at no cost. The car was loaned to the school by the Florida Dodge Chrysler, Inc. Previously, cars were loaned to the school from other corporations at a low cost.

Just For The Record

DATING: In case you have forgotten what to do on a date, here are a few tips for you.

When a boy has a date he should always be on time, and the girl shouldn't keep him waiting. If the girl has a date she should always be on time, and the boy shouldn't keep her waiting. If the couple is walking the boy should walk next to the curb. If they are riding the boy should open the door for the girl and help her in before getting into the car, himself. If he is taking her to a movie, and there is an usher the girl should walk behind the usher and the boy behind her. But if there is no usher the boy should walk in front. When he finds a place to sit, he steps aside and lets the girl in and then follows her. There is to be absolutely no necking or kissing in the movies or any public place.

When the movie is over, the couple may stop for a hamburger and coke. Boys should always have young ladies home on time. When they reach home, if riding the fellow should get out and open the car door for the young lady, and walk her to the front door. It would be nice if the girl told the young man she had a pleasant evening. If this is the first date ladies, do not kiss him good night. He will return.

Band Parents Speak

Wednesday morning, October 7, 1964, a special assembly was called by our principal, Charles McCarty. The purpose of this assembly, we learned, was for the band parents to make a plan to the students for cooperation in raising funds for the band uniforms.

The spokesman for the group, Mr. Williams, talked with the students in a very frank manner.

Following Mr. Williams' talk, the band played many of their most requested songs.

The assembly was brought to a close with the student body singing the Lake Shore High School song.

RIDDLES

Question: Why did the little moron put his toes in the fire?

Answer: Because he wanted to pop his corns.

1. Get your hair out of the way by pinning it back or by putting a band around your head.

2. Use a mild soap and warm water. Rub the soap over the face in an upward circular motion. Be sure to give special attention to your neck, ears, nose, chin and hairline.

3. As quickly as possible use the warm water to remove all soap, cleaning the skin thoroughly.

4. Dash cold water on your face to close the pores.

5. Pat your face dry with a clean, course towel.

6. A lotion or cream may be applied to keep your face soft.

7. Your face should be washed at least twice a day but for more serious problems the face should be washed more often.

If you are unable to wash your face often using the methods discussed, use a cleansing cream or lotion before applying more makeup.

The Organizations Speak

By Mary Ann Smith

Though our radiant queen will be the center of attraction during the many activities scheduled, we, the members of the organizations, would like for our girls to be at least recognized.

"We" said the members of the chorus, "Would like for the world to know that dainty Lula Mae Carrigan will represent us in the school term as Miss Chorus."

"Delores Florence," boasts the members of the student council, "will be our reigning queen."

"Since we don't have any girls in our organizations," the masonry boys and the New Farmers of America remarked, "we, the members of the organizations, would like for our girls to be at least recognized."

"Let us make Willie Ruth Hill known," shouts the New Homemakers of America. "She is Miss N. H. A."

"Don't forget Evelyn West as Miss Little Theatre," cry the members of the Little Theatre.

"Extra! Get this published in the newspaper: Daphne Adams has been chosen to be Miss Publication."

"Listen senoritas and senors, Vivian Berry has been chosen to be Miss Foreign Language," shouts the Spanish Club.

We, the students of Physical Education, will have you to know that Gail Stanley will represent us as Miss Physical Education.

The members of the Teenage Club would like for you to know that Ira Dean Perry has been chosen to be Miss Teenager.

"Hep, 2, 3, 4," cries the football team. "Our sweetheart is Patricia Hamilton. What a touch down!"

"Bertha Lawson," said the seniors, "has been chosen to represent us as Miss Senior."

"Don't," yelled the school, "forget Emma Davis, our lovely Miss Homecoming. We must not forget Miss Lake Shore's attendants and Miss Lake Shore Junior High and her attendants."

Come on, join in with us and help us to make our girls recognized.

SINCLAIR ANNOUNCES

THE MOST IMPORTANT GASOLINE IMPROVEMENTS SINCE WORLD WAR II

The Challenge Of Modern Automotive Engines

By R. L. Pontious, Senior Research Engineer
Sinclair Research, Inc.
Harvey, Illinois

Automotive gasoline engines have undergone a series of evolutionary design changes since World War II. The development of these high performance power plants by the automotive industry has been complemented by similar effects in gasoline technology by the petroleum industry. The combined efforts of these two major industries allow the motoring public to enjoy the best transportation in history.

The modern gasoline engine is a product of intensive research on every component in its design. The compression ratio has been steadily increased to obtain more power per gallon of gasoline burned. Combustion chambers have been altered for more complete burning of the air-fuel mixture. Mechanical friction of moving parts has been reduced. Carburetion, ignition, and cooling systems have been improved. Engine life has been extended through use of better materials and manufacturing techniques. These changes have significantly increased the efficiency and road performance capabilities of the gasoline engine in all types of vehicles during the past 15 years.

Compression Ratio

The increase in engine compression ratio is perhaps the most significant of these factors. By raising the compression ratio the air-fuel mixture is squeezed or compressed into a smaller space within the cylinder. This not only raises the compression pressure in the cylinder, but also increases power output. As a result of this steady increase in compression ratio over the past 15 years, present-day engines are about the same size as yesterday's engine, but develop nearly twice the average horsepower. The average compression ratio of passenger cars in 1949 was 6.8:1 as compared to 9.3:1 in 1964; average horsepower has increased from 105 to 203 during the same period.

Knock

The higher power output and temperatures resulting from increases in the compression ratio impose greater heat loads on the fuel in the combustion chamber. Under such operating conditions, a critical point exists where spontaneous ignition of the unburned air-fuel charge can occur ahead of the normal spark plug ignition and flame front passage. These premature explosions cause shock waves which manifest themselves as audible knock to the motorist.

The antiknock characteristics of gasolines are related to the thermal stresses which the fuels can endure and are measured by the well-known octane number. Octane ratings measure a gasoline's ability to withstand heat and pressure and to burn smoothly and evenly for maximum power. The higher the octane level, the less the tendency to knock since the fuel has a higher resistance to any spontaneous combustion tendencies which waste energy and cause "knock."

Exclusive Nickel Compound 10 times more effective than other additives in combating harmful engine deposits!

Low octane number fuels cannot be used in high compression engines

when they are properly tuned for maximum power without encountering knock, overheating, loss of power, and possible damage to engine parts. If the spark timing is retarded as a means to alleviate these problems, a considerable loss in performance is incurred. In order to realize the gains resulting from increased compression ratio, the octane number of the fuel must keep pace with the octane number requirement of the engine. The petroleum industry has steadily increased gasoline octane ratings to meet engine needs, with average premium grade fuels going from 87 octane in 1948 to 100 octane in 1964, and average regular grade fuels from 80 to 93.5. However, further increases in octane ratings of fuels have some practical and economic limitations.

Truck Engines

Although this discussion is primarily directed toward passenger car engines, similar problems with high-speed knock and preignition are becoming quite common in truck and bus engines. The performance level of these power plants has also been increased through the development of high speed units with higher compression ratios. Since 1954, the average engine speed at peak power output has gone up from 3000 to 3900 RPM and the average compression ratio has increased from 6.6 to 7.8:1. The usual deposit build-up effects associated with these changes, knock and preignition, are particularly serious since truck operators much prefer to use the lower-cost regular grade gasolines. This practice trades performance for economy in order to compete with diesel engine trucks in heavy duty service.

Engine Durability

As noted at the beginning of this report, the modern gasoline engine has reached new highs in performance. At the same time the motoring public's demands for engine dependability and durability are closely aligned with those of performance for over-all transportation efficiency. Use of the steadily expanding network of high speed interstate expressways and toll roads requires improved durability characteristics. It is not uncommon for a motorist to cruise steadily at 70 mph for 2-4 hours at a time without interruption by stop signs or lights on a long weekend trip, then drive under 40 mph in urban traffic only a few miles each day for the rest of the week. The new car warranties of up to 50,000 miles require relatively trouble-free operation under all types of driving conditions.

Although engine lubrication is probably a more critical factor in engine durability, fuels and/or additives can have a significant influence on engine life. Heat and deposits affect cylinder and piston ring wear, valve life, and spark plug performance; engine components and is subject to any benefits which may be imparted by the fuel.

Summary

Deposit build-up in the combustion chamber is the major problem which adversely affects modern automotive gasoline engine performance. These deposits are primarily responsible for increased octane requirements and abnormal surface ignition tendencies, all of which result in detonation, lost power, and engine damage.

Although the ideal solution is complete elimination of these deposits, this goal does not appear feasible at the present time. A more immediate and practical solution would be to change their heat transfer characteristics, glowing tendencies, and minimize volume buildup.

Better fuel economy, power, and efficiency can be obtained at compression ratios up to 17:1. Further breakthroughs in either fuel or engine technology are necessary to take advantage of these future compression ratio trends without octane requirement and surface ignition penalties.
